REGULAR MEETING OF TOWN COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the town council was held on Tuesday night, March 29, at the town hall, which was a public holiday. The meeting of the previous regular meeting was adjourned to read and file the following documents received for signature:

Alberta Government Telephones, $4.86; Blairmore Hardware Co., $16.76; Blairmore Hotel, $1.00; Great West Electric, $30.53; Mothers Allowance Act levy, $90.00; West Canadian Collieries, $200.90; C.R.B., $5.00; Canadian General Electric, $5.00; J. E. Gifford, $4.56; Union Bank, $30.00. The latter account was for rent and instalment on purchase of town hall in the first instance, and for new church in the last instance.

A communication from Supt. C. D. Macintosh re lime crossing was read and filed.

A by-law was introduced amending the Building By-Law, section 4, requiring a license for Clubs. The fee set was $200 for a year's license.

A delegation from the school board recommended that we consider the matter of jointly employing an assessor. The name of W.D. Spence, of Calgary, was recommended by the department of municipal affairs committee. The town council and school board mutually agreed to employ Mr. Spence for this work if he can be secured at once.

By an almost unanimous vote, the B.C. legislature turned down the amendment to the coal mines regulation act proposed by Thomas Upstill, labor member for Fernie, that the present eight-hour day from bank to bank in coal mines should be changed to six hours.

WILL OPPOSE SUNDAY GAMES

At a well attended meeting of sports enthusiasts held in the Scott Hall, last night, it was decided to organize for both baseball and football for the coming season. The meeting was presided over by Alan Hamilton, while Fred Thorpe acted as secretary.

James Turnbull was chosen chairman of the Football Club and Secretary-Treasurer; George Tripp, of Pincher Creek, Secretary-Treasurer; Walter Smith, of Blairmore, and Thorpe were appointed chairman and Secretary-Treasurer respectively of the baseball club.

A committee composed of Jack McAndrews, James Turnbull, James Mine and A. Morency, will solicit contributions, said to be divided equally between the two clubs.

Mr. Turnbull's contribution of $100 was offered the Baseball Club by Eddie Berger, together with the use of his services for the organization of the team whenever required.

Several small accounts outstanding from last year's club will be paid from the proceeds.

Communication was received from Pincher Creek, Cowley and Macleod relating to the baseball league organization, were read to the meeting, and it was decided that the Baseball Club enter a league covering the territory between Burns and Fernie.

A joint committee, comprising the secretaries and chairmen of the two clubs, were appointed to interview the general manager of the West Canadian Collieries with reference to procuring satisfactory grounds for sports. W. Chappell was added to the committee.

Practically the same football lineup as last year will appear this year, but some changes will occur in the lineups.

In connection with the season's schedule, the league delegate was instructed to oppose Sunday games. In view of the financial support for sport has come from people who are strongly opposed to the desecration of the Sabbath by sport, and if a combination of other financial support is not maintained, Sunday games must be suppressed.

J. E. UPTON,

From the Diary of A Hudson's Bay Clerk in the Seventies CHASE OF A GRIZZLY BEAR—LOVE PHILTRES.

By O. G. MARSH (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

To follow up this bear's history, it was a bona fide grizzly all right. It had wandered in from the plains and was killed in a dramatic way shortly afterwards by an Indian named Schin who was paddling in Swan Lake with his young wife, and had been chasing a loon, so had his old flint lock gun loaded with ball. The day was very hot and the Indian's wife was thirsty. Close to them and a few yards in front there was a beautiful spring of cool cold water which formed a deep pool. Taking the gun and a birch bark Rogers cup, the water, they made for the spring, and while the Indian stood down to fill the vessel he noted a reflection of a bear in the water, and looking up saw him standing on his hind legs just across the pool. The Indian fired and the bullet went right through his heart. Mr. Grizzly tumbled in the water, and he was such a size that they had to come for help to the post to get him out. I traded the skin, which was covered with scars, and being out of season, was only fit for cart coverings. It was the largest hide I had ever seen, and I secured his claws and sent them east to my father.

To return to Ba'tess, we boiled our kettle and had a good dinner on the site of the bear's hideout. He would look at me curiously at times and mutter, "He must be a little mad." "No Ba'tess," but my father's people were Irish, and we let it go at that. Late in the evening we reached our canoe and an hour's paddle took us to Ba'tess's cabin, where his wife (a very superior woman) kindly rigged me out in some dry clothes.

Next morning I settled up with him and the wind being fair, sailed home. My sail was an oddity, a "seamless sack" split down the centre with a light yard top and bottom, quite big enough for my small and cranky craft in a wind.

On reaching the post I found a number of women and children all feasting in the kitchen. This was strictly against the rules of the company, so I turned them out and informed Murdo, saying, "Is this the way you look after things in my absence?" His excuse was a queer one for these days. O-que-wes-za, an Indian widow, by no means a fascinating person, had bewitched him, and whatever she told him to do, that he had to do. I swore at his folly, told him to buck up and be a man and next time the lady called to try her games, kick her off the premises. He said he would try, in a doubtful sort of tone, but in a few days the same thing occurred, and I decided to send him to headquarters at Fort Ellis for his own good as well as the company's. So, exit Murdo.

I had a handsome mouse skin jacket trimmed with otter fur, long fringes, and in fact the very latest thing in sado-modern. That was getting soiled and I determined to have it washed and re-snocked, and thoroughly made over. Dominion's Future Status

HON. L. A. David Believes Canada Eventually Will Have Complete Independence.

Montreal.—Hon. L. A. David, provincial secretary, speaking before the Women's Canadian Club, as a representative of the French Canadians in Canada, declared his belief that Canadian would eventually possess complete autonomy, a nationhood predicted by a purely "Canadian mentality," composed, of the most ardent antitudes of the inhabitants of all her provinces, but quite free from imperialistic leanings or racial prejudices.

"I am not at present a separatist," said Mr. David, "but I believe that our country has at the present time the right to look forward toward the most perfect measure of autonomy it deems possible."

Fire Loss at Calgary.

Calgary.—Fire completely destroyed the premises of the Blackie Trading Company and the Blackie Hardware Company, early Wednesday morning. The damage is estimated at $27,000.

Demand of Teachers

Calgary. Pedagogues Will Put Limit On Their Compromises.

Calgary.—Local Teachers' Alliance have practically decided that a fifty per cent increase on their salary demands would be as far as they would go in meeting the school board.

The teachers' original demands made increases totalling $177,000. The normal increases under the old schedule would have been $18,000.

The board was willing to make increases to bring this to $40,000. The fifty-fifty compromise will be $89,000.

Protest From Mannix.

Turin, Italy.—Archbishop Mannix of Australia, who passed through Turin bound for Rome, said he was anxious to see Pope Benedict and give him a full report of what he termed the "intolerable situation in Ireland."

Turks Abandon Batum.

Constantinople.—The Russian Bolshevik forces occupied Batum, and an agreement entered into by the Turks with the Moscow authorities in which the Turks waived all claims to the city.

Premier Lloyd George Attacks Socialism

Says It Presents a Greater Menace to the Country Than War.

London.—A bitter attack on Socialism was made by the Prime Minister in a speech at a luncheon of the new members of the Coalition Group, as the participants in the luncheon party were styled. "The military dangers which united the parties have disappeared," said Mr. Lloyd George, "but greater, more insidious, more permanent dangers still confront us. The great peril is the rise to power of a new party with new purposes of the most subversive character."

Attempt to Poison.

There was a much more serious attempt made on a worthy man's life in the spring at this post. It was just about sugar time and the natives were tapping some ash-maple trees and occasionally bringing me a little sugar or syrup. We had a large bush shed here, and it was customary to build at least two York boats yearly. On the last ice arrived Mr. Angus McLeod from Manitoba House, an experienced boat builder. He was a very fine fellow, married with a nice little family, whom he had left behind. I didn't want to put Angus in the ordinary men's house, so had quarters fitted up for him in a small building just outside the gates of the post, where he was quite comfortable, and he at once got busy at the boats.

Some little time elapsed, and in one of my daily visits to the posthouse, found Angus in low spirits and muttering, "He must be a little mad." "No Ba'tess," but my father's people were Irish, and we let it go at that. Late in the evening we reached our canoe and an hour's paddle took us to Ba'tess's cabin, where his wife (a very superior woman) kindly rigged me out in some dry clothes.

A NOVEL SOUVENIR

We are in receipt of a novel fire protection souvenir, just issued by the National Parks Branch, Ottawa, in connection with its educational campaign to interest the travelling public in the necessity of care in the use of fire within the national parks.

Investigations made by officials over a period of years show that by far the greater majority of the fires with in the parks are man-caused. It is obvious that efficient protection cannot be ensured until the travelling public realises its responsibility in the matter.

This souvenir forms part of the collection of prophecies which has been carried for several years and which has resulted in very largely reducing the number of fires caused by campfires. It takes the form of a charm or fetich such as was formerly carried by the Indians of the West to ensure personal success as to war, hunting and marriage. It is enclosed in a plain facsimile of an Indian pouch now in the government museum at Banff, with a small leaflet telling the story of the charm and making the fire appeal. As most people slip a coin of this nature into their pocket or purse without thinking, it is hoped that it will serve as a constant reminder for need of greatest care with regard to fire and so help the cause of forest protection, not only in the parks, but throughout the Dominion.

In telling the story she occasionally asked a few questions. One of them was:

"When the new wine was brought to the governor of the feast what did he say?"

A little girl, remembering what she had heard, probably on some festive occasion, called out:

"Here's look!"

Charges that British Columbia paper manufacturers were making exorbitant profits, ranging as high as 400 per cent., were made by R. J. Cromie, publisher of the Vancouver Sun. The Sun, said Mr. Cromie, has refused to sign a contract at prevailing rates and will continue to wage a campaign for lowered prices, even if such action brings about suspension of publication.

Fatal To The Ducks

A country housewife of good inclination, but with little culinary knowledge, decided to try her hand at cake making. The result was somewhat on the heavy side, and, after offering it to the various members of her household, she threw it to the ducks in disgust.

A short time afterwards two ducklings tattered at the door.

"I say, missus," they shouted,

Presentation

On the occasion of the departure of Mayor Edmund Disney from Coleman on a brief visit to England, he was waited upon by a number of intimate friends at the Coleman Cafe and banqueted. The gathering was presided over by Ex-Mayor A. M. Morrison, who in the course of his opening remarks paid a stirring tribute to the value of Mr. Disney and family to the community. The presentation of a gold watch by Mr. Disney and suitable tokens of appreciation by Mrs. Disney and Miss Elsa were made at the hands of Mr. Alex Cameron, chairman of the school-board.

Those present included Messrs. W. D. Quimby, W. L. Rippon, E. Macdonald, D. K. Allan, J. R. Powell, W. Vincent, S. Moore, J. Johnson, H. Gate, George Kellock, C. Quimby, J. Paulson, J. R. David, J. Rumor has it that several changes are to be made in the A. P. P. in this district. It is said that Const. Moriarty will be assigned to Coleman, while Sergt. Nicholson, of Lethbridge, will be given charge of Blairmore. Both are very efficient officers and will no doubt do their utmost to clean up the bootlegging business in The Pass.

Ed. Royle was seen passing through Blairmore this morning towing a horse and buggy. Ed. believes a man should never be preceded by a horse and has probably been reading signs that appear on the hills near Lundbreck until recently, requesting "auto and other vehicle drivers to precede their outfits going down the hill." Ed. has attached mudguards and cowcatchers to the rear of his buggy to avoid being run over by other objects.

Jack Houghton, town police at Coleman, is almost daily reimbursing the town's treasury with liquor fines. During the past week quite a number of parties have been brought before the cadi and found guilty of having in their possession more intoxicating liquor than the law allows and stiff penalties have been exacted in all cases.

Love of The Wild

BY ARCHIE P. MCKISHNIE

Then the shadows would flicker and the Colonel would creep back to his old seat, and smile at the fire. Sometimes, very late, as he groped his way from the room, his eyes would seek the face in the frame, and all bitter thoughts would melt away from his mind. He would sit down again, from the door and the portrait would smile upon him. But many and many nights these questions would arise to him:

"Why did they burn my boat? Why should they threaten my life?"

And now the first spring rain was falling, whispering a promise of clear skies. The birds were here again, the very essence of spring in the soft voice and damp smell. The Colonel sat before the fire thinking of what he would do, and how he would do it, now that he was threatened. He had been going forth to shoot the Bushwhackers just how greatly they had erred. And he intended to show them that he was a man of honour. But he had refused to give the encircled up to justice, then he would get the machinery into motion which would surely bring them. He did not believe for a moment that they would refuse to give over the men who had broken the law. They well knew that he, Colonel Hallibut, wasted no words, and made no promises. He had given them a chance for their threat to shoot him. As for their threat to shoot him at sight, he hooted the idea as absurd. They might be murderers, but they were not fools.

Watson had decided to take him one at a time with whom he sought an explanation from and made a demand of the Bushwhackers. To take a single gun would lead them to think that he was afraid.

All night long the Colonel sat listening to the rain, anticipating that of which the elements had deprived him to date. At last he had advanced by far more gently, and only when the tardy day began to dawn did his eyes close again.

The old colonel, a good-looking man, with his hair grey, had a taste of death and danger, and she simply replenished the fire noiselessly and slipped out to prepare breakfast. Dick came in when it was ready, and gently shook his master's shoulder.

"Breakfast, sir," he apologized; "it's ready, sir."

The Colonel arose and伸伸 his long legs. Then he went over to the window. Not a single patch of snow was visible. He threw open the door and stepped outside. From the ground and a nearby hedge had come a fox and she simply replenished the fire noiselessly and slipped out to prepare breakfast. Dick came in when it was ready, and gently shook his master's shoulder.

"After you have finished your meal, Dick, put the saddle on lay Tom, he commanded. "Don't ask any questions, now. Fact is, I'm going down to town. It's our house, I defer in Bushwhackers' Place. I'm going alone, but I'm going loaded for trouble. I'll take my pistols and the double-barreled rifle. If I don't come back, you boys will have better come and look for me."

"Lore!" breathed Dick, starting. "There, now, you needn't get scared," laughed the Colonel. "I'm going out now to say good-by to the dogs. Get Tom out as soon as you can."

Hallibut walked to the dog-kennels, and whined him as he went along, but his head was bowed and he did not call out, save his fashion, to his friends. Instead, he bent and patted each of those wifely-faced bitches that nosed and rubbed him, his spirit stilling in each an undertone of forced jollity.

"Sprague, you old dogger, you're glad it's spring, aren't you? Hello, Nell, what are you doing away from town at this time of year? Poor old Jep-temper, old chag Ha, ha, he's a good-for-nothing old cooger, he is."

He walked over to the corner of the yard, his Colonels following him, and, taking his coat off, he called the dogs in close beside him.

"Boys," he said, and his voice was not quite steady, "some people would think me either a fool or a crazy man if I told you what I'm going to do by you. But some people don't know dogs. I've been good friends, old chaps, haven't we? Jep, it's like you to speak first." He had done his best, and whined, "Jip, I guess you voice the sentiment of the whole pack." The Colonel glanced about him. "For God's sake, don't you see?" he said, "I'm going on a journey without taking any of you along. I wish I didn't have to go, but go I must."

The Colonel was to the dogs, and, with a final bark, he turned and called the dogs in close beside him.

"Boys," he said, and his voice was not quite steady, "some people would think me either a fool or a crazy man if I told you what I'm going to do by you. But some people don't know dogs. I've been good friends, old chaps, haven't we? Jep, it's like you to speak first."

"Dear Colonel, don't go to Bushwhackers' Place," begged Smythe. "They'll shoot you as sure as we are."

"They certainly will," confirmed Watson.

The Colonel nodded. "Let 'em," he grunted, and, picking up his coat, he passed out followed by the distressed Smythe.

When they had gone Watson lifted the trap-door.

"You idiot," he fumed, "you almost got yourself shot with your stinkin' Canada-Green tobacco! I'll be mighty glad to see the last of your red head, Amos. No, you mustn't up yet. Be patient for five minutes, then you can go. And may you not stop until you crossed the border."

"I'll lose no time, don't you fear," he said, and Watson let the trap-door fall with a shudder.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Blood and Cloud.

Colonel Hallibut, however, knew that the Bushwhackers had awaited the melting of the snows quite as patiently as he himself had, it might have surprised him. And had he known that the old colonel was even more eager to have an explanation from him as he was to have an explanation from the Bushwhackers, he certainly would have been somewhat puzzled.

During the long, dark hours the loom of the weavers clanged and the good wives weaved the spinning-wheels, the men of the wood moldered.

bright leaden bullets and measured black powder into curved horns. When the three-days' rain began Bill Paisley went over to McTavish's and stood with both hands in the snows to be welcomed. All through Bushwhackers' Place there seemed a sense of unrest; a feeling of apprehension held the people, and they waited for what they felt must come. Hallibut, however, had no time to do this. Behind him lay a power of which they knew little, but which they were prepared to meet, necessary to their lives. So during the rains that broke the manacles of winter the bushmen came together, strong-armed and clear of eye, strong of purpose, bold, and determined to defend themselves. Big McTavish's Pill keeps a man feeling fit and fine, keeps him always at his best. Headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, and other ailments are kept at bay by Dr. Hamilton's Pill. Dr. Hamilton's Pill keeps the system clean and pure, tonics up the blood, and aways tireless. No drug is better than Dr. Hamilton's Pill, 25¢ all dealers or The Catarrow Co., Montreal.

I come back we'll have many a good chase together. And if I don't—" "Well, sir, sir," cried Dick from the gate.

A few minutes later the Colonel rode it was just coining noon when he drew rein before Smythe's store at Ridgeview. The sun was out, the air was clear. The early spring day was still misty with sweet-smelling fog. The wind blew from the south soft and refreshing. Mr. Smythe opened his outer door, seeing who his visitor was, came forward with an exclamation of pleasant surprise.

"Heaven be praised, it's the dear Colonel," he cried.

"Watson, sir," said "come out and refresh yourself. Mr. Smythe opened his inner door, seeing who his visitor was, came forward with an exclamation of pleasant surprise.

Pains About the Heart

ANY derangement of the heart's action is alarming. Frequently pains about the heart are caused by the formation of gas arising from indigestion.

Relief from this condition is obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chronic indigestion results from sluggish liver action, constipation of the bowels and inactive kidneys.

Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills arouse these organs to activity they afford lasting relief for indigestion and overcome the many annoying symptoms.

"Oral Hygiene" Lay Education Series

"YOUR TEETH"

First Stage of the Decay of the Teeth.

By Rea Proctor McGee, M.D., D.D.S., Editor Oral Hygiene.

If your knife and fork, spoon, plate, cup and saucer were left from one meal to another without thorough washing, you would change your boarding house.

But why be so particular about outside matters unless you thoroughly cleanse your own mouth after each meal?

When food is allowed to pack between and around the teeth, caries, or decay as it is commonly called, gets a good start. The packed food decomposes and ferments, and makes the bacteria happy so they all move in.

As the bacteria get settled upon the enameled surface of the teeth, they cover themselves with a coating called a gelatinous plaque. Under this protective covering the bacteria grow unless they are removed by thorough cleaning.

Decay of the teeth, caries, is a disease just the same as tuberculosis or measles is a disease. In this disease the hardest tissue in the body is attacked.

The bacteria of decay are really tiny plants. They live and die as other plants do and when they die, they decompose and ferment, forming an acid. This acid, in its fresh state, will dissolve the enamel of the tooth a very little at a time at first, but the further in the bacteria they get, the more rapidly they work.

The enamel of the teeth is not sensitive. It is composed entirely of the salts of lime, shaped into microscopic rods that are bound together by a natural cement. The rods all point toward the centre, like the bricks in an arch. Enamel is the armor plate of a tooth; when the decay gets through the armor it reaches the ends of the tiny fibers from the rods that radiate through the body of the tooth.

It is here that you get that first sharp pain that there is trouble ahead, trouble that only one person can stop. Don't delay. Your teeth are too valuable.

Industry Enters Educational Area

Utilization of Private Organizations For Purpose of Mass Education.

Canada, never backward in thought leadership, is setting an example to the world in her utilization of private organizations for the purpose of mass education.

Noteworthy in the new movement is the co-operation of a leading tractor firm with the implement manufacturers in the teaching of the principles of power farming. Lectures on moisture conservation, weed eradication, pure seed, fertilizers, good tillage and the economic use of labor are being given in all rural centres throughout the Dominion. Illustrated by motion pictures of high educational value and delivered by specialists, themselves drawn from farm stock, these schools of agriculture, which are free from the taint of direct advertising, are receiving the encouragement of Federal and Provincial authorities and the direct aid of district representatives and municipalities.

The example thus set may have a far-reaching effect on education in general. Principal's consider that the day is not far distant when college and school curricula will be supplemented by lectures from experts drawn from all fields of industry.

Staking Oil Claims.

Nineteen oil claims, involving over 6,000 acres of land, have been filed with the recording agent at Fort Smith. Honors Were Given.

A very self-satisfied young man managed to get into conversation with a pretty girl during a railway journey to England. He was very pleased with himself, and when he rose to get out at his destination, he said to the girl, "I have to thank you for making this dull journey a very pleasant one." I'm afraid you wouldn't perhaps have been as nice if you'd known I was a married man." "Oh, as to that," said the girl, "I'm an escaped lunatic."

Less than one-third of the world's population use bread as a daily food.

Women Engineers

Many Branches of Profession For Which Women Are Suitable.

There are many branches of the engineering profession for which women are eminently suitable. Proof of this is to be found in the remarkable success of Miss Griff, the first woman to become an associate member of the Institute of Automobile Engineers of Great Britain. Starting as a motor engineer, Miss Griff ultimately acquired such a knowledge of lighting installation, pumping plants, gas and oil engines, from machinery, plow and tractors, that she was able to establish herself as a successful consulting engineer. English other pioneer women engineers are engaged in electrical engineering, civil engineering, draftsmanship, patient office work, and the mechanical side of X-ray work.

What One of the Best Known Travellers in Canada Says

"Now I am going to give you an unadvised testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Moreover we have had a profound admiration for Father Minard, particularly his so-called liniments. Perhaps he is not a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day in 1912, while I was in the city of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs and feet, like a man who never complained, rather boisterously. The good doctor, however, told me that I must be innocent I have." "Go ahead!" I said, just to humor him. Well, in the comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, and I was lucky. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes later, and you can tell the world I had no trouble.

Cost of the British Monarchy

British Monarchs Receive Through Parliament Whatever Amount Nation Cares to Vote Them.

No doubt gets its due, King or President, and a more economical cost than does Great Britain, or to speak more correctly the British Empire. Its monarchs during the centuries had acquired by hereditary rights, by inter-marriages and by Acts of Parliament vast fortunes and immense incomes. William IV, of his own free will gave up all these rights and incomes, and accepted instead a greatly smaller sum to be voted by Parliament. Queen Victoria, King Edward and King George did the same, and now receive just what their people, through Parliament, care to vote them. The country receives from the sums ceded very much more than it pays. So that the Empire is actually making money out of its Sovereigns.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Owen Sound, Ont.—"I suffered for ten years with female organic trouble, neuritis and indigestion. I was weak and had such bad pain I could hardly stand it. I used to sit in a chair all day, holding my head in my hands and the back and under the shoulders, and was often so sleepless at night that when morning came I felt as tired as when I went to bed. I was taking medicine all the time, but did not get any good. Then I read the testimony of a man whose condition had been similar to mine, and who strongly recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Compound. I took it for a week, then for six boxes I felt much better. I continued taking the pills until I had taken six more boxes and I can only say I feel as well as ever. I am enjoying the best of health, and I advise all men who feel run down to give these pills a good trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Compound can be obtained from your dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
